

Hackney Child Wellbeing Framework

The Hackney Child Wellbeing Framework focuses upon child and family needs, not thresholds for services. It does, however, attempt to give an indication of what might be an appropriate approach to responding to child and family needs by defining three levels:

- Universal – a response by universal services, often working individually
- Universal Plus and Universal Partnership Plus – a response by universal services working together in universal settings and sometimes bringing additional targeted resources into a multi-agency partnership plan to both assess and address concerns
- Complex/high risk – a response that requires high level specialist services, often governed by statutory frameworks, to take the lead role.

Universal services that meet universal needs include schools and childcare providers, children's centres, health visiting, school nursing, GPs, play services, Young Hackney, police, housing and the voluntary and community sector.

Some of the targeted services that can support universal services include family support services, First Steps, Young Hackney, Special Educational Needs, behaviour and educational support, speech and language therapy, short breaks and support for transitions, and voluntary and community services.

When needs are numerous or sufficiently intense to require a Universal Plus or Universal Partnership Plus response, this will often require a written plan as part of the Common Support Framework, Key Worker Action Plan (step across) or a Child and Family Assessment (step down) so that the family and all workers involved are aware of what outcomes we hope to achieve, who is responsible for the actions to achieve them and how we will know when we are successful.

When children and families have complex needs or are high risk, specialist support will sometimes be provided by Children's Social Care. This is indicated in the table by using a bold typeface. These are often situations where the child is at risk because of deficits in parenting or carer capacity. Other specialist services include Young Hackney, Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services and specialist disability services (social care and/or health).

The pathway and processes for responding to need are described in the Resource Guide.

It is important to remember that each child and family will have a unique set of needs and strengths. The Child Wellbeing Framework is a guide and is not intended to replace professional knowledge, experience and discretion.

Professionals should be alert to the likely cumulative effect on children and young people of multiple concerns and consider whether the presence of numerous indicators (about the parenting being provided) amounts to the child's needs being neglected.

Universal

Any identified additional needs can be met by universal services.

Universal Plus and Universal Partnership Plus

Child/young person's needs can be met by universal services working together or with the addition of some targeted services

Complex/High Risk
